GREAT INTEREST FELT IN MR. BLAINE'S VISIT TO IRELAND.

MR. BLAINE, MR. DEWEY AND MR. HALSTEAD GOING TOGETHER TO THE CONTINENT—CARDINAL HOWARD'S MISSION TO ENGLAND AND MR. PERCIVAL'S TO IRELAND—CONFIDENTIAL NOTES—PERSONAL NOTES—ABOUT CONSPIRACIES—AMERICAN VISITORS.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Mr. Blaine arrived in London Thursday night after a week's visit to Ireland. He reached Belfast last Friday, went thence to Dublin, spent three days in Dublin, thence went to Cork and Queenstown for a single day, and thence back to Dublin, where he finally quitted Thursday morning. The Lord Mayor of Dublin gave him a pressing invitation to remain over Saturday and accept a banquet in his honor, to which he proposed to invite 150 guests. This Mr. Blaine was reluctantly obliged to decline. His letter to the Lord Mayor, though not written for print, was published with Mr. Blaine's consent. "I shall not soon forget," writes Mr. Blaine, "the kindness I have received in Ireland. The deep interest I feel in the prosperity and welfare of her people will if possible be increased by my visit among them." Nor will they soon forget Mr. Blaine. I hear from Irish sources that his visit excited the liveliest interest and that the deep regret which Mr. Blaine expresses at his inability to prolong his stay is shared by all the foremost Irishmen.

In company with his wife and two daughters Mr. Blaine starts for the Continent on Monday, intending to spend some time at Schwabach, the waters of which Mrs. Blaine has been advised to drink. Mr. Blaine's health continues perfect. He looks stronger, better and more robust than before going to Scotland. Scotch air, Mr. Carnegie's hospitality, constant drives on a coach all over Perthshire, and good company have all had influence on his health and spirits. Mr. Blaine dined last evening in company with Mr. Dewey and Mr. Halstead, and the party did not break up till midnight. It is a permissible conjecture that their conversation was not wholly unconnected with American politics. They avowed, however, their intention of starting together for the Continent. There is nothing to prevent any American from drawing any inference he pleases from these interesting incidents.

Cardinal Howard arrived from Rome this week, nominally on a visit to friends, but really it is presumed with a private mission from the Pope. Cardinal Howard, it is well known, has used all his great influence at the Vatican against the Nationalist cause in Ireland, and his presence in England at this moment is believed to have some connection with Mr. Persico's mission to Ireland. The question of diplomatic intercourse between England and the Vatican is once more to be raised. Pope Leo XIII. wishes it strongly and is prepared to pay a high price for the concession. Lord Salisbury will be assured that Papal authority can, if he chooses, be exerted in Ireland in behalf of law and order. It is difficult to see how, in the present temper of the English people, anything can come of such negotiations.

Reports respecting Mr. Persico's Irish enterprise are as usual contradictory. Nationalists say they have captured the Papal Envoy and profess to know that his report will be made in their interest. They point triumphantly to his friendly relations with Archbishop Walsh. Loyalists think it is Mr. Persico who has captured the Irish primate. They allege in proof the visit paid by Archbishop Walsh and Mr. Persico to the Viceroy. This visit was described in the Irish papers as purely formal. In fact Archbishop Walsh, who had never before set foot either in the Castle or the Viceregal Lodge, accompanied Mr. Persico to the Viceroy's residence in Phoenix Park. They arrived early in the afternoon, spent an hour in friendly talk with Lord and Lady Londonderry, staid to bed and parted on the best of terms. This is the account of those in a position to know these particular facts. But when they go on to infer that Mr. Persico has taken sides with the Government, and still more when they suggest that he has converted Archbishop Walsh, no sufficient evidence to sustain this theory is forthcoming.

There has been something like a revolt among the landlords with respect to the Irish Land Bill. The House of Lords sat to consider the amendments till long past midnight. Lord Salisbury allowed a number of important changes to be made. The most important of all was one providing that revision of judicial rents shall be made not arbitrarily but with reference to the fall in prices of produce. This point was raised and rejected in the House of Commons. The present alteration does beyond doubt considerably affect the interests of the tenants, and it was energetically resisted by Mr. Parnell, Sir William Harcourt and Mr. Dillon last night. Mr. Parnell threatened to let the bill be sacrificed if the amendment was pressed. Mr. Balfour explained that it was the Land Commissioners themselves who desired this modification. They objected to have to revise rents without some guide or principle of revision. The Opposition pressed for postponement in order to have time to consider the effect of the modifications. Mr. W. H. Smith at first refused, but finally, under pressure from Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Hartington, assented. So the matter stands over till Thursday.

One result of this new controversy is likely to be the prolongation of the session into September. All the other Lords' amendments, except one relating to town parks, were accepted, the Ministry maintaining in a greatly diminished House a majority of about forty. An attempt will be made to induce Mr. Gladstone to return from Hawarden for Thursday's debate, but the expectation is that some further compromise will be reached under Lord Hartington's and Mr. Chamberlain's influence. Mr. Chamberlain certainly has none too much love for landlords, Irish or English.

If the statements of the chairman of the Midland Railway are accurate the strike of engineers and firemen has ended and their failure is complete. They built great hopes on yesterday's meeting of the stockholders, but the stockholders sided with the chairman, whose attitude is one of much harshness to the men.

"Gallant little Wales" has had her full share of attention from London this week. She wisely chose the dead season for her hitherto, but unwisely deferred it till Mr. Gladstone, who was to have presided one day, had vanished into the semi-privacy of Hawarden. Hyde Park and Albert Hall have been occupied by Druids, Arch Druids, Bardis and other mysterious personages. There have been competitions in singing, Welsh poetry, in painting, in pianoforte playing; a prize of $200 for the best ode to Queen Victoria, and prizes for penmanship singing, whatever that may be. The chief ceremony of one day was chairing the bard whose ode won the $200. The Rev. R. Williams, curate of Abernethy, venerable Arch Druid of Clwyddfargal, led the festival. Much more has happened than I venture to describe. The greatest glory of all was the presence yesterday of the Prince and Princess of Wales. The Prince made a good little speech. Financially the affair has not succeeded, nor have the proceedings except at moments been lively.

Perhaps the most interesting feature to Americans is the knight of Mr. Puleston, the Anglo-American Member of Parliament for Devonport. This is the John Puleston and Mr. Puleston becomes Sir John Puleston in recognition of his labors as chairman of the general committee. If popularity and constant friendly service to his fellow countrymen from America constitute a title to knighthood, he well deserves it for that also. It is the Queen who confers it, not the Druids or Arch Druids.

Mr. Dewey was on the platform yesterday during the Eisteddfod meeting in Albert Hall and witnessed some interesting ceremonies and heard the Prince of Wales speak. He is of the opinion that the Prince knows how to do it; or, as he says, the Prince has got the touch. Sir John Puleston subsequently presented Mr. Dewey to the Prince and some conversation followed. Mr. Dewey has abandoned his Russian trip. He does Versailles and then Paris with Mrs. Dewey. They intend to journey to Hamburg and spend a week or two with the Anglo-American colony now thronging that town, and hope to return to England in time to pay a visit to Lord and Lady Aberdeen at Haddo in Aberdeenshire and sail for New-York September 17.

Mr. Halstead paid a visit on Wednesday and Thursday to Mr. John Walter of "The Times," at his great country place, Barwood. He declares himself loth to quit London, but is resolved to cross to the Continent immediately, meaning to get as far as Baden. He has engaged passage for September 3 on the Bourgoigne from Havre to New-York.

Mr. Waller's dinner to ex-Senator Cameron and Senator Hawley brought together about forty gentlemen including Mr. Dewey, Mr. Halstead and others, English and American, distinguished in various ways. All precedents were put aside in order to give Mr. Cameron the opportunity of proposing the Queen's health. This the veteran did in words few and fit, and the cheers of the company equally divided between Mr. Majesty and Abraham Lincoln's anti-slavery Minister. Mr. Hawley spoke loyally and well for Connecticut. One of the Englishmen present, Sir Henry James, proposed the health of the President of the United States, which was drunk with all the honors. Mr. Dewey surpassed himself in a successful effort to rise to the heights of wit and eloquence which the toast to the President demanded. Mr. Halstead responded with gravity and with humor, further replies from Mr. Harold Frederic and Mr. Oakey Hall were heard with applause.

Mr. Waller himself, one of the chief orators of the evening, spoke with untiring ingenuity, freshness and geniality. Mr. Cameron's eighty-nine years did not prevent him from staying till near 12 o'clock. Eight theatres only remain open in London, and all of these with the exception of the Savoy, where "Raidgore" still holds the field, and the Prince of Wales's, where "Dorothy" is a year old, are playing melodrama or farce for the benefit mainly of provincial audiences. The Gaiety, which reopens this evening after a week's interval for rehearsals, will make the month.

The title of the play in which James Booth Pater appears has been changed from "Love to True Love," and again finally to "Inval Love." Mr. Charles Warner, who has been superintending the production of this piece, is a purely melodramatic actor.

A DISCREDITED RUMOR ABOUT THE THISTLE.
GLASGOW, Aug. 13.—There is a rumor in circulation here that the yacht Thistle, which is to start for New-York on the 15th inst., will be the property of Mr. Bell, one of her owners, discredits the report. He states that the Thistle is so much out of gear that it would be impossible for her to reach New-York before Wednesday of next week, and she may be a week later in arriving.

Little credence is placed in the rumor of the loss of the Thistle, and people in shipping circles regard it as the usual accompaniment of the voyage of a coasting yacht across the Atlantic. The rumor excited special interest, however, because of the keen zest with which every bit of news or gossip about the yacht has been received. There has not been a sufficient delay in her arrival to excite much interest, but the fact that she has not yet arrived has been a source of much speculation. Some of the seamen or sailing vessels, who have spoken her, but it is assumed that she followed the example of the Geneva and took a southerly route, and that she will arrive before Wednesday of next week, and also to secure fine weather. The officers of the steamer Worcester, which arrived here yesterday from Aton, south, however, believe that the Scotch yacht did not follow a southerly course.

The Thistle sailed from Gourock on the Monday before last, and was expected to arrive here on Wednesday, July 30. On the first part of the passage, westerly and northwesterly winds prevailed, and latterly the steady headwinds and contrary winds, which have come north and kept a northerly passage. The light winds and calm lately will probably account for the delay of the arrival of the yacht.

HEAVY WEATHER ON THE IRELAND COAST.
GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 13.—The schooner A. D. Story, the first of the Ireland mail fleet, arrived here to-day. Captain Ryan has made several voyages to that region and reports the weather this season the worst he has ever known. The wind was so strong that the vessel could not fish. The French cod-fishing fleet, he says, has done fairly well. Danish vessels were reported lost on that coast, but the crews were saved. The French fishing vessel Sophia, of Mors, was lost at Reikiavik, with a crew of twenty-two men. Great distress prevailed among the natives, many of them leaving the country. The story sailed from Iceland, July 21, meeting numerous icebergs on the Labrador and Newfoundland coasts. Inquiries were made about mackerel, but none had been seen this summer.

APPEALING TO THE QUEEN FOR MERCY.
LONDON, Aug. 13.—Mr. Matthews, the House Secretary, has refused to interfere in the case of the Hebrew Lipski, who is under sentence of death for murdering a woman, and the solicitor of the condemned man has consequently sent a telegram to the Queen, imploring her to grant a reprieve, as he is in possession of facts which will enable him to establish the prisoner's innocence.

MRS. JAMES BROWN POTTER IN "LOYAL LOVE."
LONDON, Aug. 13.—"Loyal Love" was produced at the Gaiety Theatre this evening, with Mrs. James Brown Potter as Inez. The plot is slight, but the dialogue is bright and vivacious. The cast is capital one, including Kyrie Bellew. Mrs. Potter's part is an unusually trying one, but it is more suited to her and shows her to great advantage than any of her previous roles. She has much improved in her acting, and was recalled three times. The play proved a success. Calls for the author were not answered.

BULGARIANS WELCOME FERDINAND.

ENTHUSIASTIC POPULAR DEMONSTRATIONS AND ONE WARLIKE UTTERANCE IN HIS HONOR.
RUSTCHUK, Aug. 13.—Prince Ferdinand arrived here last night. His coming was announced by salvoes of artillery. The houses and streets were profusely decorated and the whole town was illuminated. A banquet in the Prince's honor was given during the evening, and Prince Ferdinand delivered an oration in the Bulgarian language, his remarks being received with great enthusiasm. A multitude assembled to meet the Prince, and extraordinary enthusiasm was displayed.

At the banquet in the evening, M. Nikiforoff, who was one of the leaders of the conspiracy which resulted in the deposition of Prince Alexander, in proposing a toast to Prince Ferdinand, expressed confidence in the fidelity of the Bulgarian people to their king, and in the loyalty of the Prince. He also said: "We will cover the Balkans with corpses rather than allow enemies to enter our country."

After the feast, Prince Ferdinand was lifted upon the shoulders of some of the officers present and carried in triumph through the streets. He was then taken to the Cathedral, where he was crowned by the Patriarch. The coronation was a grand affair, and the Prince was crowned with a crown of gold and precious stones. The Patriarch then pronounced a benediction over the Prince and the people.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 13.—The arrival of Prince Ferdinand in Bulgaria and his intention to occupy the Bulgarian throne has been the subject of much discussion here. The rumors of changes in the Government are denied, and it is asserted that the Sultan has full confidence in the Ministry. The Prince's arrival is expected to bring about a change in the Government, and it is believed that the Prince will be crowned in Constantinople.

THREATENED UPRISING OF UTES.
CALLING OUT THE COLORADO MILITIA TO SUPPRESS THE INSURRECTION.
DENVER, Aug. 13.—An Associated Press dispatch from Glenwood Springs, says: "The last Grand Jury indicted two White River Utes of Colorado's band, for horse stealing. Three or four days ago Sheriff Kendall with a small posse of men started for the White River country to arrest the two Utes, who, with a number of the band of renegade Indians, were camped near Meeker, close to the scene of the massacre in 1879. Yesterday a courier from there arrived in town with a requisition from the Mayor of Meeker on the Mayor of Glenwood Springs for arms and ammunition. Several men with about forty Winchester rifles started at once. The courier reports that the Utes refused to surrender to the sheriff or to allow them to be arrested, swearing by their forefathers, 'Me heep big Injun, own whole country. Damn sheriff, damn law, damn white man, no arrest Injun. They heep big Injun, own whole country. The fire was returned, one Indian being killed. The Indians retired to the brush and kept up the firing, shooting at every one in sight. They sent the agency for more of the renegades, who will join them, if they are not prevented. Trouble of a serious nature is feared, as Colorado troops are going on the march, and it is now camped near the Utes, waiting reinforcements. It is safe to say, unless they shake the dust of Garfield County from their moccasins and get back to the agency, the two Utes will be arrested. Kendall is a brave and fearless man, an Indian fighter since he was a boy, and has no fear of brave men. He is now camped near the Utes, waiting reinforcements.
